1 Motor officer communications system

Setcom Corp. recently introduced its Liberator Wireless System. By eliminating the cable between motor officer and motorcycle, the Liberator System provides maximum flexibility, freedom of movement and reliable communications. By operating in the 900-MHz ISM frequency range, the system avoids the interference challenges associated with higher frequencies. Also, the system is backward compatible with most of Setcom's current equipment, saving departments money and upgrade hassles. Finally, the system draws the minimal power it requires from the portable radio battery.

1 Helmet-independent headset

The CT-Neckband headset is a helmet-independent headset system that is quickly ready to use and comfortable to wear, even under tight-fitting police, fire, military, bicycle, riding or mountain rescue helmets.

The neckband headset from CeoTronics is characterized by a super-flat design and low weight. It is manufactured from shapeable wire that can be individually adjusted to the shape of the wearer's head. A sound guide tube carries the speaker signal directly to the ear and can optionally be combined with an earplug, an ear bud or a crosspiece.
